The Muses' Bower.

The Old Man in the Model Church.

Well, wife, I've found the model church!
I worshipped there to-day!
It made me think of good old times before my hair was gray.
The meetin' house was fixed up more than they were years ago,
But then I felt when I went in, it wasn't built for show.

The sexton didn't seat me away back by the door;
He knew that I was old and deaf, as well as old and poor;
He must have been a Christian, for he led me through
The long aisle of that crowded church to find a place and pew.

I wish you'd heard that singin'; it had the old time ring,
The preacher said, with trumpet voice, "Let all the people sing!"
The tune was Coronation, and the music upward rolled,
Till I thought I heard the angels striking all their harps of gold.

My deafness seemed to melt away; my spirit caught the fire;
I joined my feeble trembling voice with that melodious choir,
And sang, as in my youthful days, "Let angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem, and crown him Lord of all."

I tell you, wife, it did me good to sing that hymn once more;
I felt like some wrecked mariner who gets a glimpse of shore;
I almost wanted to lay down this weather-beaten form,
And anchor in the blessed port forever from the storm.

The preachin'! Well, I can't just tell all the preacher said,
I know it wasn't written; I know it wasn't read,
He hadn't time to read it, for the lightnin' of his eye
Went flashing 'long from pew to pew, nor passed a sinner by.

The sermon wasn't flowery, 'twas simple gospel truth;
It fitted poor old men like me; it fitted hopeful youth.
'Twas full of consolation for weary hearts that bleed;
'Twas full of invitation to Christ, and not to creed.

The preacher made sin hideous in Gentile and in Jews;
He shot the golden sentences down in the finest pews,
And—though I can't see very well—I saw that falling tear
That told me Hell was some ways off, and Heaven very near.

How swift the golden moments fled within that holy place;
How brightly beamed the light of Heaven from every happy face!
Again I longed for that sweet time when friend shall meet with friend,
"Where congregations ne'er break up, and Sabbaths have no end."

I hope to meet the minister—that congregation too—
In that dear home beyond the stars that shine from heaven's blue.
I doubt not I'll remember, beyond life's evening gray,
That happy hour of worship in that model church to-day.

Dear wife, the fight will soon be fought—the victory soon be won;
The shining goal is just ahead; the race is nearly run,
O'er the river we are nearin' they are thronging in to the shore
To shout our safe arrival where the weary weep no more.

The Story-Teller.

ONLY A MECHANIC.

THE snow was falling like a myriad flight of tiny white-winged birds; the December blast howled mournfully through the twilight streets, when the lights were beginning to shine out here and there, solitary beacons of fire, and Grace and Myra Payne were sitting before the grate in their cosy, well-used sitting-room, talking.

Grace had been darning stockings, a piece of domestic finger-craft not particularly ornamental, but nevertheless most essential, and Myra was dotting the edge of a shirt collar with stitches like seed pearls, but it had grown too dark to work now, and they sat in the ruddy shine of the grate fire, enjoying the season commonly known as "blind man's holiday."

"Now, Grace, I'm sure you'll think better of it," said Myra, coaxingly.

"Don't think there's the least prospect in life of any such thing," returned Grace.

Stay, though. We have not photographed our heroines for the eye of the reader's fancy. Well, they were two pretty girls, although in somewhat different styles. Myra, the elder by a year, was tall and slender, with dark, languid eyes, an oval face, and jet black hair, slightly rippled, while Grace was small and sprightly, rather inclined to be plump than otherwise, with big brown eyes, full of liquid laughter, a skin like rose-colored satin, and brown curls which could no more have been coaxed to lie straight than so many grapevine tendrils.

"You are really going to marry a common mechanic!" persisted Myra, remonstratively.

"Well, I think he's a rather uncommon one, myself."

"But our papa is a gentleman."

"Our papa is a lawyer by profession, Myra, but I don't think he is any more of a gentleman than Walter Genlis."

"Mechanics are not gentlemen!"

"Yes, they are, if they behave themselves. Now, look here, Myra," and the big brown eyes became very resolute, "I am very glad that you are engaged to a Wall street broker, who lives in a brown stone house, but I don't think that gives you the privilege of criticising my lover."

"But, he is so poor, Grace."

"He has health and strength, and his own strong right arm to help him."

"And you will have to work."

"Well, what then? My goodness gracious!" and Grace elevated two little plump hands, "what do you suppose these were given to me for? To wear kid gloves and diamond rings only, and to gather roses? No, indeed! I can find a better use for them than that."

"Grace, you are perfectly incorrigible!"

"Yes, I am; so you may just as well leave off lecturing me," said Grace, saucily. "I plead guilty to all your accusations. I am going to marry nothing but a mechanic. I shall live in half a house; I can't go out in a carriage, nor give parties, and I think very likely that I shall not unfrequently wash dishes, sweep rooms and iron my husband's shirts. And through it all expect to be very happy."

Myra sighed and abandoned the useless argument. What was to be done with so very unreasonable a damsel as this?"

* * * * * *

A bright little hearthstone—a kettle singing on the hod; the crimson carpet, not Brussels, nor velvet, but simple ingrain; and the plain, neat furniture, with Grace smiling at the ready-spread table—this was a pleasant home for Walter Genlis to come to after his day's work in the machine shop was over.

"Upon my word," he said, gaily, "I think we're happier here than Myra in her big house, with her swarm of servants. Do you know, Gracie, I felt almost at one time that I was doing wrong in marrying you?"

"Wrong, Walter?"

"Myra seemed to think you were such a victim."

"Do I look like a victim?" demurely asked Grace.

"Why, no, I can't say I think you do, but I wish I could have brought you to a house all your own, my pet. Never mind, some day you shall reign in a palace worthy of you."

"Nonsense, Walter; could I be happier anywhere than I am with you?"

"Are you happy, love?"

She rose from her seat and came over to her husband's side, looked full into his face with eyes so eloquent that all the dictionaries in creation could not have spoken more plainly.

Yes, he knew that she was happy.

Mrs. Linley, too, thought that she was happy, and pitied "poor dear Gracie" from the bottom of her heart. No servants; no silver napkin rings; no double damask table cloths with embroidered monograms on them; no carriage; no Wilton carpet; no brocatel curtains. What would life be worth without thee? And then, too, she lived so outlandishly—actually dining in the middle of the day, and having—good fates!—pork and cabbage occasionally, and fried onions! Mrs. Linley was quite sure that she could not have existed under such a fearful concatenation of circumstances.

"Of course we must continue to visit them," said Myra, inhaling the Lubin perfume from her Valenciennes edged pocket handkerchief, "but really, I am quite ashamed to have our carriage seen in such a common-place street."

"She's your sister," said Mr. Linley, "and Genlis is a good fellow, after all."

"I know it, but a common mechanic!" And Myra took out her pearl tablets to look over her visiting list.

Grace Genlis knew very well that Mr. Gustavus Linley despised her and her low estate, but Grace cared not two pins for that—why should she? Was she not happy as Queen Victoria herself in her snug little house, with love to brighten the low ceilings and beautify the maple wood furniture.

"Grace is a pearl of price," thought the young husband, as he watched her at her thrifty housewifery, "and some day she shall shine in a proper sitting as well as Gustavus Linley's conceited doll of a wife. She shall, or my name is not Walter Genlis!"

Mrs. Linley did not find herself entirely inconsolable when Walter Genlis accepted an offer from a California firm to come out as head machinist, and her sister went away.

"It's just as well," thought Myra, "for I want to give a series of Germans this winter, and I couldn't have invited them, and of course, they would have been mortally offended! Now it's all right."

The years passed by, and Myra Linley forgot to answer her sister's letters so often that, at length, Grace left off writing. Mrs. Linley became a bright star in the world of fashion, and enjoyed the false artificial life as one enjoys fevered excitement of any kind!

One evening Mr. Linley came in late, but he often did that. Myra glanced laughingly up from the book she was skimming over, not because she enjoyed reading, but because it was fashionable work, and she wanted to say she had read it—and noticed that his face was perturbed.

"What's the matter?" she inquired, a little startled by his look.

"The matter," returned Gustavus, deliberately seating himself opposite her, "is that we are ruined!"

"What do you mean?"

"Simply that we are penniless—beggared—havn't a penny in the world, and debts enough to sink the Spanish Armada!"

Myra looked at him in blank dismay.

"And what are we going to do?"

"Do? Why, do what other people do!" savagely answered her husband. 'Go into the second story of a tenement house and starve?"

Mrs. Linley fell into weak, sobbing hysterics. Her husband not heeding her, sat staring moodily at the floor.

"It must be a horrible dream," groaned Myra; "it can't be true."

But, unfortunately, it was true, and in something less than a week, Mrs. Linley, her husband and three children found themselves the inmates of a tawdry, third-rate, boarding house, while Gustavus vainly tried to obtain a situation somewhere as clerk, and Myra cried and scolded alternately, and wished herself dead so many times a day that Gustavus finally lost all patience, and intimated, darkly, that "he wished so too."

And then Myra called him a "horrid brute," and cried more persistently than ever.

* * * * * *

"A carriage at the door, and to see me. It can't be possible!" said Mrs. Linley, peeping over the blind of the window.

"It was Mrs. Gustavus Linley the lady asked for, ma'am—a bright pleasant spoken lady as ever I seen," said the maid-of-all-work who had brought up the message.

"Tell her to come up here," said Myra, recklessly as she hurriedly smoothed down her neglected hair and twitched at the buttons of her faded silk wrapper.

Why, Grace Genlis! it isn't you?"

It was Grace Genlis, nevertheless, in a superb black silk, and a priceless India shawl, and real diamonds in her ears, but Grace Genlis all the same—eager, loving and impulsive

"We heard about Gustavus' failure," cried Grace hugging her sister and laughing and crying alternately, "and Walter said he would come to New York at once and see what we could do for you. We are rich people now Walter and I," said Grace with a spice of innocent triumph, and he has concluded to settle in New York, and Walter owns the Genlis Iron Works, and we should like Gustavus for book-keeper, and, of course you'll all come and live with us, and—that's all, Walter, dear, isn't it?"

"All! I should think it was," said Mr. Genlis, who had listened smilingly to his wife's avalanche of words, "and a pretty mess you've made of it. There, Myra stop crying—we'll be all right again, presently."

"It's so—so trying," sobbed Mrs. Linley, "that Grace should be rich and wear diamonds, and I—"

"Didn't I always tell you I should put my little wife in her right place one of these days, although I was nothing but a mechanic?" demanded Walter. "Why, there is Linley, I declare. Give us your hand, old fellow; you havn't changed a bit."

And Gustavus Linley listened with humble thankfulness to his brother-in-law's offer to make him book-keeper to one of the branch establishments of his famous Iron Works.

"But how did you strike this golden vein?" inquired he, when he had accepted the position, with thanks, and Myra had whisperingly commented on their being reduced to such an ignoble fate.

"It was all through an invention of Walter's," said Grace, gleefully. "I always knew Walter would make his way in the world. But come—get your things on—I'm going to take you away with me. Walter and Gustavus can walk, and there's lots of room for the children in the carriage with us!"

Mrs. Linley was thankful enough to leave the cramped limits of this third-rate boarding house, and return once more to a spacious brown stone-front, where the halls were paved with mosaic marble, and the ceilings frescoed in dove color and gold. But it was none the less a sore come-down for her pride that the house was not her own, but that of the simple-minded little sister who had married a "common mechanic."

"Who would have thought it ten years ago!" sighed Myra.

A Letter to Young Men.

Somebody gives the following very sensible advice to young men, through the columns of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican :

I take it that the first great lesson a young man has to learn is that he is an ass. The earlier this lesson is learned, the better will it be for his peace of mind and success in life. Some never learn it and extend into the evening of existence, their ears lengthening with the shadows as they go by. Some learn it early and get their ears cropped, and say nothing about it; while others sensibly retire into the quietest employments, where it will not be noticed.

A young man bred at home and growing up under the light of parental admiration and fraternal pride, cannot readily understand how any one else can be as smart as he is. He goes into town, puts on airs, gets snubbed, wonders what it means, goes into society, and finds himself tongue-tied, undertakes to speak in a debating club and breaks down, or gets laughed at, pays attention to nice young women, and finds a very large mitten on his hand, and in a state of mind "bordering on distraction," sits down to reason about it. This is a critical period in his history. The result of his reasoning decides his fate. If he thoroughly comprehends that he doesn't know anything, and excepts the conviction that all the world around him knows a good deal more than he does, that he is but a cipher, and that whatever he gets must be won by hard work there is hope for him. He will go to work and learn how to live. On the contrary, if a huge self-conceit still holds possession of him, if he gets cross and sour, if he turns up his nose, or sneaks, he will be cut. The world has no use for him. A young man who is not tractable and placable, and refuses to admit to himself that he does not know anything to speak of, and to do it good-naturedly might as well retire to private life, first as last.

After a young man has thoroughly comprehended the fact that he is an ass, the next thing for him to learn is that the world doesn't care anything about him—that he is no subject of anybody's admiration or overwhelming esteem—that he has got to look out for himself. A letter of recommendation will procure an invitation to tea. If he wears a good hat, the sexton will show him to a pleasant seat in church, and expects him to contribute liberally when the plate goes round. If he is a stranger, nobody will look after him. Every man is busy with his own affairs. He will not be noticed until he becomes noticeable, and he will not become noticeable until he does something to prove that he is an absolute value in society. No letter of recommendation will give him this. No family connection will give him this except among those who think more of blood than brains. Society demands that he should be somebody, and that has a right to demand it. Society is not so particular what a man does, but he must do something to prove he is a man.

I used to know a man who achieved a very handsome position by writing articles for the North American Review. Nobody read the article, but the fact that he wrote one, that it was published, that it was long, did the business for him. If had done something. But everybody cannot write articles for the North American—at least. I should hope not for I revive that publication through a benevolent friend. Everybody, however, can do something, or be something. There is a wide range of effort between holding a skein of silk for a pretty girl, and saving the pretty girl from drowning; and between electing votes on election day and teaching a Sunday school class. But a man must enter into society on his own free will, as an active element or a valuable component, before he will receive the recognition that every true man longs for. I take it that this is right. A man who is willing to enter society as a dependent, is mean and does not deserve recognition.

There is a great many young men who indulge in dreams that in order to secure success in life, they must have luck, and that will perhaps turn up at a convenient moment. The vision haunts them of some benevolent old gentleman, with a pocket full of rocks, and a remarkable appreciation of merit and genius, who will perhaps give or lend them anywhere from ten to twenty thousand dollars, with which they can go on swimmingly. Perhaps he will take a different turn, and offer to educate them. Or, perhaps, with an eye to the sacred profession, they long to become the beneficiaries of the education society, or some benevolent circle of females. It is a most inspiring sight—that of a young man with health in his blood, with a pair of broad shoulders and presentable calves, and a hundred and fifty pounds, more or less, of good bone and muscle, standing with his hands in his pockets, longing for help! I admit that there are positions in which the most independent spirits may accept of assistance—may in fact, as a choice of evils, desire it; but for a man who is able to help himself to desire help in the accomplishment of his plans for life, is proof positive that he has received a miserable training at home, or that he is mean clean through.

I have often thought that the education society does a great deal more harm than good in this very way, by inviting into the christian ministry a lot of young men who are willing to be helped. A man who receives assistance always sells himself to his benefactor unless that benefactor happens to be a man of sense, who is giving absolutely necessary assistance to one he knows to be sensible and honorable. Any young man who will part with freedom and the self-respect that grows out of self-support is a sneak, neither deserving assistance nor capable of making good use of it. Assistance will always be received by a young man of spirit as a dire necessity—as the chief evil of his poverty.

When, therefore, a young man has ascertained, and fully admitted the fact that he is an ass, that the world doesn't care anything about him, and that, while he holds the means in his hands of obtaining an independent livelihood he cannot receive assistance without compromising his self-respect, and selling his freedom, he is in a fair position for beginning life. When a young man becomes aware that only by his own efforts can he rise into companionship and competition with the sharp, strong, and well-drilled minds of those around him, he is ready to work and not before.

The next lesson is that of patience and contentment, with the regular channels of business effort and enterprise. Angelina Matilda must understand, in the first place, that she has got to wait; and if Angelina Matilda is a sensible girl, and fit for a wife, she will be good, and tell you to take your time. There is no good building done in this world without a good foundation, and for you to enter upon a business that you have not thoroughly learned, and before you have won a character or "a red," is ultimately to bring your house down about the ears of Angelina Matilda and such pretty children as Angelina Matilda may give you. Don't think of winning success in one year or two years. If Heaven should so prosper you that at the age of thirty you have really established a business that pays you with certainty a living income, you are to remember that you are faring better than the majority of men. If you achieve a competence at forty-five or fifty, that will be soon enough; and if you have had to earn it by the hardest, you will know how to take care of it, and your children will be so bred that they will not squander it.

You will hear of some one who has made fifty thousand dollars speculating in western lands. Pity him. He will be almost certain to lose it. You will hear of various fortunate speculations, and the chances are that you hear of the failure of the speculation within two years. Don't be in a hurry, but with genuine "Teutonic pluck," wait and work. Stick to your business. Do the best manner whatever you undertake, and be content to go "step by step," as Mr. Pendlum did not go; and by all means refrain from reading books addressed to young men. They are most of them written by ninnies or men with kinks in their heads' Read my letter and you will be all right.

Evils of Gossip.

I have known a country society which withered away all to nothing under the dry rot of Gossip only. Friendships once as firm as granite dissolved to jelly, and then ran away to water, only because of this; love that promised a future as enduring as heaven, and as stable as truth, evaporating into a morning mist that turned to a day's long hours, only because of this. A father and son were set foot to foot with the fiery breath of anger that would never cool again between them, only because of this; and a husband and his young wife, each stepping at the hated leash which, in the beginning had been the golden bondage of a God-blessed love, sat mournfully by the side of the grave where all their love and joy lay buried, and only because of this. I have seen faith transformed to mean

HUNTINGDON, PENN'A.

Wednesday Morning, May 21, 1873.

Circulation LARGER than any other Paper in the Juniata Valley.

☞ We have read the several communications which have been forwarded, by Gen. Van Buren, to the President and the Secretary of State, and while the General indulges in very intemperate language, there is a spirit of outraged innocence pervades them that will gain for him thousands of honest friends. We cannot believe, in the face of this man's sworn statement, that he is guilty, and, whether he is or not, a great outrage has been committed upon the Commission. Some one has blundered.

☞ Some evil disposed persons have put in circulation a report that the old and reliable firm of Advertising Agents, S. M. Pettengill & Co., No. 37 Park Row, N. Y., and 701 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, was about to retire from business. We are pleased to hear that this is not the case. We have been advertising for these gentlemen for many years, and they have always transacted their business like honest men, doing justice to all concerned.—There are no more honorable and upright Agents in the business than they are. We wish them many more years of usefulness.

☞ We were entirely unprepared for the action of the Constitutional Convention upon the questions of waiving juries by agreement and allowing three-fourths of a jury to make up a verdict. There has been so much evidence of progress exhibited in the various articles adopted by the Convention, that we were led to believe that the questions above stated, and even more radical changes, would be adopted, but it seems we reckoned without our host. Why is this? We can only account for it on the ground that there are too many old barristers in that body. The jury system, as it now stands, is in universal disfavor. It is merely an expensive means of sheltering the corrupt and infamous. So general has the impression of the unreliability of juries become that it is a common remark that there is one thing that Omnipotence cannot foretell—what will be the verdict of a petit jury. And yet the Constitutional Convention refuses to give us any relief from a system handed down from a semi-civilized age. The only reason we can give for it is that certain barristers find that they can better control and muddle those unskilled in the intricacies and technicalities pertaining to our worn out system of practice—the Common Law system, which has been declared by one of the ablest jurists the country ever produced, to be a system in which "justice is frequently smothered in her own garments." We hope the Convention will reconsider these grave questions and the people will stand by it. We would, a thousand times, sooner submit an honest case to a judge, learned in the law, and with a broad comprehension of the facts, than submit it to a jury of twelve unskilled men.

SENATOR JOHN SCOTT.

"Neither Sherman nor Thurman, of Ohio, took the back pay: Neither did Scott of Pennsylvania."

The preceding paragraph has been going the rounds of the papers. It is a sad fact that such distinction is worthy of so much public notice. There is but one sentiment throughout the country in regard to the back pay question; and we think it will prove to the accepting members the worst investment they have ever made. The Ohians are particularly incensed and disgusted; but they have the satisfaction of knowing that both their Senators have unspotted palms. It gives us pride that our Senator Scott has shown himself above the common grade of politicians who have come into high places, and that he is conscious that he represents a great State in the National Councils, and is not in the United States Senate to subserve personal ends.

But we are not now learning to respect our honorable Senator. We were among the first to suggest him as a proper person to uphold the honor of the Commonwealth in the Senate, and to act as her agent in that august body. For many years we had known him well; and while, under the old division of parties, we found him on the wrong side of the line, we always recognized him as a pure, able and honest gentleman. When the rebellion broke out, he severed his party ties, and boldly and eloquently and with all his energy spake and worked for our perilled country.

Since he has been in the Senate, he has filled very important positions, and has exhibited great zeal and industry in discharging his public duties. He ranks among the ablest legal minds in Congress, and while he is an emphatic and leading Republican, no one counts him as a blind party man, but as one who serves his party because he finds in its principles and measures the safety and prosperity of the country. No public man of our day is less a demagogue, none is more direct, fair, or upright, none has higher moral courage. There may be abler debators, men more scholarly, more elegant orators, more adroit managers, more attractive and influential personages in the Senate Chamber, but no better Senator answers to the roll-call than "Scott of Pennsylvania."

We believe that such men are coming to the front. The people are growing weary of the class of public men that lately have been at the head of politics, and mean to trust their affairs into the keeping of men whose integrity is avouched by pure moral lives as well as intellectual ability. And so we anticipate a higher position in the future for our accomplished and faithful Senator. It will be a happy day for the Republic, when such men as he are its favorites; when intriguing and self-seeking, place-purchasing and vote-selling aspirants shall be hooted from the hustings, and men shall be sought for to fill positions of honor and trust for their worth's sake. Then we will find prominent and honored plain, pure-hearted, clear-headed citizens, like "Scott of Pennsylvania."—Chambersburg Repository.

☞ The Governor has appointed Howard J. Reeder, of Northumberland county, James Duffy, of Lancaster, and Benjamin L. Hewitt, of Blair, State Fishery Commissioners, under the Fish Law passed at the late session of the Legislature. With the two first named gentlemen we have no acquaintance, and, consequently, have no knowledge of their qualifications for the position; but we are quite sure, that if they have no better qualifications to recommend them than the last named gentleman, the Governor has made a serious mistake. Hewitt is believed to be deficient in practical and theoretical knowledge, energy, disposition to adapt himself to the business, and, in short, every qualification that is requisite in the prosecution of the work. We know nothing that would recommend him for the position save his being a much over-rated politician. We never knew a man to run so large an establishment on so small an amount of capital. Brains and practical worth must be at a fearful discount when such as he are selected for positions of this kind. We do hope the law will not become a dead letter for want of executive ability.

☞ The Altoona Sun asks: "Who was it that first introduced Chinese laborers into this country but tariff monopolists who support the Republican party?" We deny it. They were first introduced into California where Protection has never been popular, and subsequently into the Southern States, where Protection is equally unpopular. It is true that a few have been introduced into some of the factories of the East and at Beaver Falls, but only where the competition was extremely great, which establishes the correctness of our argument that Chinamen alone can compete with the pauper labor of Europe. A low tariff must bring low wages, and Chinamen will work for less wages than skilled American mechanics. Take away the tariff and the manufactories must stop or lower priced laborers must be introduced.

☞ Gov. Hartranft will accept our thanks for an early copy of the General Laws passed by the Legislature at its late session.

The Modoc War.

Number of Troops in the Field—What General Davis has Done—His Plan of Operation—More Fighting on the Front.

NEW YORK, May 14.

Special dispatches from the Lava Beds contain further details of the last fight. Captain Hasbrouck's men knew that the Modocs were in the vicinity, and went to bed, thinking themselves fully guarded against any surprise. But the Indians approached so stealthily, by creeping on the ground, that the men were only awakened by the first discharge, which killed one man, Coporal Totten, Troop G, First Cavalry, and wounded eight.

The Warm Spring Indians showed great presence of mind, and chased the Modocs so rapidly that the latter dropped bullet pouches and other articles to aid their flight. The soldiers fecl in excellent spirits over the result, and believe they now have the Modocs cornered.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.

Dispatches received from the Lava Beds to-day state that three hundred and seventy-five soldiers and the Warm Spring Indians are now scouring the Lava Beds and surrounding country. The total number of troops in the field is twenty officers and four hundred and eighty men.

LAVA BEDS, camp south of Tule Lake, May 12—10 A. M., via Yreka, May—14. Since General Davis assumed command of the Modoc expedition, ten days ago, only one conflict, that of Saturday, has occurred, though the movement, of which this last affair was the feature, is still progressing, and several bodies of troops are now hunting the Modocs.

General Davis found the soldiers disheartend by the disasters of the campaign, and had to resort to many devices to arouse their lagging enthusiasm and to increase their efficiency. He began his work with a will and earnestness that won for him the sympathy and friendship of the officers and privates, and inspired them with confidence.

He studied the situation carefully, utilized the experience of his predecessors, gave the wearied soldiers time to recuperate from the fatigues and mental excitement incidental to their rough fights in the Lava Beds, sent out scouting parties, had his men disciplined in Indian dodges, and now has his first grand movement in operation. It is his intention to harass the Modocs, keep them moving from place and subdue them. Men say they feel that General Davis means business.

LAVA BEDS, May 10—11 P. M.

Lieutenant Bacon, of Troop K, First Cavalry, who has arrived in camp with his detachment, having been on escort duty between here and Captain Jack's old stronghold, brings a report from Lieutenant Chapin, commanding the latter camp, that his pickets heard firing in the direction taken by Colonel Mason's command in the present scout after the Indians, and it is generally supposed that an engagement has occurred.

CAMP SOUTH OF TULE LAKE, LAVA BEDS, May 13—6 A. M.—Part of the men of this camp, if not the entire force, will be moved to Boyle Camp, on the peninsula in Tule lake, within the next two weeks. This camping ground is very unhealthy in summer. Already rattle-snakes and scorpions are familiar with the interior of the tents, and are making unsocial visits during the night. News will probably be received from Colonel Mason's force to-day. Every one is anxious to hear the results of the present scout.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.

A dispatch from Yreka to-night says: the Modocs are in another rocky fortress, which they are making stronger.

The troops will not attack them before the arrival of reinforcements. The new position is about twenty miles south of the last stronghold.

C. Burgess has seen Bogus Charlie on the Upper Klamath, who said he knew nothing about the contemplated massacre of the commissioners, and that there were thirty Modocs left, who would fight until the last man was killed.

Seventy-five men will be retained in camp to guard the stores until the arrival of reinforcements.

Explosion and Fire in a Nova Scotia Colliery—Forty Miners Supposed to Have Perished—Harrowing Scenes at the Pit Mouth.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 13.—This community was startled to-night with the intelligence that a terrible explosion had occurred in the Drummond Colliery, in Pictou county, at one o'clock to-day. Manager Dunn, Assistant Manager Richardson, and forty of the workmen were in the pit when the explosion took place. The greatest excitement prevailed after the fearful occurrence, and crowds of people for miles round came rushing to the scene of the disaster and saw one of those heart-rending scenes, which is described by eye witnesses as something harrowing beyond all conception, the recollection of which will never fade from memory. Mothers, wives, sisters, children and friends crowded around the burning pit, mourning pitifully the terrible fate of those below, their heart-rending cries being heard for a long distance. Every effort has been and is being made, to rescue the men, but so far without success; and it is feared that they have all perished. The fire up to this time—nine a. m.—is still raging. Assistance from Pictou and New Glasgow, where great excitement prevails, is at hand, and strenuous exertions are being made to subdue the conflagration. This city is greatly excited over the news of the calamity.

LATER PARTICULARS.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Herald special from Halifax locates the mine disaster at the village of Westville, county of Pictou, one hundred and three miles from Halifax, where are three large collieries in full operation, exporting large quantities of coal. Navigation having recently opened, the workmen demanded increased wages, and several strikes occurred. One of the largest mines, called Drummond colliery, owned by the Intercolonial Company of Montreal, has been closed several days, and to-day the men returned to work. At half-past eleven a shot in the coal set fire to the slope, and half an hour afterwards a fearful explosion took place, caused by the accumulation of gas during the time the mine was closed. About two o'clock a second explosion occurred, coming up the slope air shaft on the old trial shaft with terrible force, and it is believed killing every one in the mine, variously estimated at from forty to one hundred, including men and boys. Soon after the first explosion cries were heard at the foot of the air-shaft. Men were immediately lowered with ropes and four of those below were brought up. Two men were going down the air-shaft to render assistance when the second explosion occurred, and were blown to pieces. There was such a small supply of water, that little could be done to quench the flames, which were still raging fiercely at ten to-night. Dense masses of smoke were pouring out of all the openings and threatening to destroy all the surface buildings. There is no hope of saving any of those now below. Many all escape was cut off by explosion. Families of the lost are married men with families.

Arrival of the Survivors—Details of Their Terrible Suffering—Death of Captain Hall.

ST. JOHNS, May 12.—Intense excitement prevails here owing to the landing of the Tyson party this afternoon. Tyson and Meyers remained on board until they were supplied with clothing by the American Consul. All look well and are in good health and spirits.

Captain Hall died fifteen days after returning from the first expedition. He was paralyzed before his death, and gradually sunk—dying at 3.25, a. m.

Meyers says he never gave up the hope of being rescued, but he never wants to get into so tight a corner again.

The party never could have reached here but for the Esquimaux. Meyers makes the following statement:

Captain Hall returned from the sledge expedition, October 24, and was taken sick on the same night.

The next morning he found his left side paralyzed. He remained in that condition for thirty days, when he got better. In a few days he relapsed and became delirious, and so continued until the morning of November 8th, when he died.

When the party separated from the ship it was quite dark, and the darkness continued for over two month

With but a couple of hours flight daily. We managed well so long a we had a snow house to shelter us, but we had to take to the boat and get on other ice field which was too small for a house, and we were only kept warm by swallowing seal fat and blood, and burning fat in pans the list of which also serve as a signal light. We have suffered most since the night of the 22d of April. The sea washed over the ice with great force. The women and children were under the boat while the men were outside trying to keep the boat from being washed way. Some of the men were washed off several times. After being rescued, their feet and hands swelled, but they recovered, and are now almost entirely well.

Tyson says that his statement, sent to the New York Herald, last Friday, contained the facts—he can give nothing more but his notes of the adventure since leaving the Polaris and which we will not publish now. He thinks that the party with the Polaris may get home, even should the vessel be destroyed.

All on board the Polaris were well. The statement published some months since respecting the relics of the Franklin expedition being sent home, are untrue, as there has been no means of communicating since the return of the Congress in 1871.

The Jonstown Tribune, of the 10th, inst., contans one of those sickening tales of horror that for the credit of humanity do not occur very often: A little girl named Heckman, daughter of a farmer residing in Yoder township, Cambria county, and aged only nine years, was out in the woods a short distance from her father's residence, in company with a young companion, daughter of a neighbor, Saturday morning, when a man named Elisha Dickson happened along in the vicinity. It is said that he enticed the little girl Heckman away some distance from the one under the pretence of showing her her young goats, and when he got her far enough that her outeries could not be heard he brutally outraged her, and committing the dreadful crime, made way to his victim managed to make her way to the house of Mrs. Fowen, and that lady immediately went to on hearing her story, informed against Dickson, and made information. Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. When the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked breasts, scalds, burns salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, gall, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containg certificates, the receipt, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. SHERIFF'S SALES. By virtue of sundry writs of Fi. Fa., Vend. Ex. and Lav. Fa. to me directed, I will expose to public sale, at the Court House, in Huntingdon, on MONDAY, June 2, 1873, at 1 o'clock, p. m., the following described real estate, to-wit:

All that tract of land, situate in Shirley township, Huntingdon county, bounded on the north by lands of Peter Shaver, (River), on the south by lands of Henry Copenhaver's heirs, on the west by lands of Samuel Shaver's heirs, and on the east by lands of William Shaver's heirs, containing fifty-four acres, and one hundred and twenty-four perches more or less, also, all of defendants interest in about 3½ acres of land, situate in the borough of Mt. Union, being the same premises sold by Eliza Smawley to the defendant by deed dated December 5, 1870.

Seized, taken in execution, and to be sold as the property of John S. Bare.

ALSO—All of defendant's right, title and interest in a certain lot of ground, situate in West Huntingdon, now part of the borough of Huntingdon, fronting 50 feet on Washington, and extending in depth at right angles to the same 150 feet to a 15 feet alley, being lot No. 186 in the plan of said town of West Huntingdon, and having thereon erected a two-story frame planked dwelling house, and other outbuildings.

Seized, taken in execution, and to be sold as the property of Daniel Pope.

ALSO—All of defendant's right, title and interest in a certain lot of ground, situate in the village of M'Connellstown, county of Huntingdon, fronting about 33 feet on the Main street, and extending in depth 165 feet to a public road, bounded on the east by lot of Henry Snyder, and on the west by lot of

READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Brief Mention--Home-Made and Stolen

Items are scarce.

Hollidaysburg has grave robbers.

Politicians are becoming friendly.

That chicken story was laughable.

Compel your children to attend school.

Postal cards have made their appearance.

Matilda Furnace has blown out for repairs.

Things begin to look ship-shape about the depot.

The fire company should have a pair of horses.

Center Union ought to have a small general variety store.

The Sewer on Allegheny street is approaching completion.

The bridge across the Juniata, on Fourth Street, is to be repaired.

The railroad buildings near the old Station are receiving a new coat of paint.

The Felton Foundry, in Everett, was destroyed by fire on last Wednesday.

An untenanted house, in the west end, is said to be haunted—with live ghosts.

We hear of no preparations being made for the proper observance of Decoration Day.

In town on Saturday—the man who wanted to find a "beer store." He looked awful dry.

The Altoona Tribune mourns because Local Option has removed the great source of locals.

People who want courtesies must not hesitate to extend them. One good turn deserves another.

We saw a female on Fifth street, the other day, in full paint and feathers, with a hole in her stocking!

Huntingdon has been the sport of all the neighboring towns on account of her Common School Accommodations.

The Rock Hill Iron and Coal Company have ordered 550,000 Woodland Fire Brick for the stacks of their new furnaces.

Postal cards are beginning to circulate freely. Make more work for Postmasters, at which they will growl, of course.

"Medicated towls" are the latest. They are used for drying the person after bathing, and cure everything from chills to jim-jams.

Loafers can now occupy the sunny, or if too hot, the shady side of a hotel front without undue reflections. But it is a dry spectacle.

The Altoona people, since the adoption of Local Option, drink their snakes in hydrant water. It must be a great place to see snakes.

A splendid drive when the roads are solid—from Huntingdon via John S. Warfel's to Center Union, and return via "Screech Owl Bend."

The editor of the Times has been elected collector and treasurer of Mt. Union. Now he will make things move. What a chance for an editor!

It takes freight about one week to come from Hollidaysburg to this place via Penn'a. RR. Some enterprising individual should start a line of wagons.

The observed of all observers—The girl at Methodist church, on Sunday night, who wore the three-storied hat. It looked like the oven attached to the Bee Hive bakery.

A young man named Heffner, employed on the "Shifter," was seriously injured, on Friday morning last, while engaged in shifting cars, in the neighborhood of the car works.

The following cases are in the Supreme Court from this county: Zerby vs. Metz; Hicks vs. Moyer; Miller & Wharton's Appeal; Leeds vs. Kahler; Weston vs. Johnston.

The regular "suckers" get the "rheumatiz" very bad now, and apply to physicians for prescriptions for alcohol. They drink the alcohol and rub their shins with the bottle.

Huntingdon has too many male and female loafers, who have no visible means of support, and who spend their time standing on the corners and sitting on door steps. Go to work.

Local Option is working better here than we expected. A few irrepressibles get liquor, some way or other, but that will wear out in a few months. They will get tired defying the law.

The summer schedule on the Pennsylvania railroad is expected to go into operation about the 25th inst. No important change in the arrivals and departures of trains east or west will be made.

The trial train which passed over the Pennsylvania railroad on Thursday last, was stopped between this and Altoona, in less than the length of the train, while running at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

The Pilgrim building, on the corner of Fourteenth and Washington, will be commenced in the course of a few weeks. It is to be a brick structure, forty-four by thirty eight feet, and three stories high.

How high is this? It comes from a Kentucky paper: "Delinquent subscribers should not permit their daughters to wear this paper for a bustle. There being so much due on it, there is danger of taking cold.

The Huntingdon County Sabbath School Convention will be held June 11th and 12th, having been postponed one week because of the meeting of the State Convention, at Titusville, on June 3d, 4th and 5th.

Some boys in the neighborhood of Chambersburg went into the woods to play "Indians," shooting at each other from behind the trees, etc. During the "sport" one of them, named John Thompson, was killed by a buckshot.

Sabbath breakers will please take notice that there was an act passed, at the last session of the Legislature, which prohibits fishing of all kinds on Sunday, in all waters of the State, under a penalty of fine and imprisonment.

Half pound of shot, judiciously administered to sympathetic cats, at this season of the year, will bear fruit in increased hours of slumber throughout the summer and have a tendency to prevent a corner in the chicken market.

A brick farm house, the property of Robert L. Henderson, in Warriorsmark township, this county, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday. We have not learned the particulars, further than that loss is in the neighborhood of $2500 and no insurance.

We have an infernal mean theif in this town. He steals the buckles off the bell-straps of his neighbors' cows. He robbed our cow on Saturday morning to repair his carriage harness. We will give that young man trouble before he is much older.

An exemplary lady of our acquaintance, who was about to send a somewhat faded black silk gown to the dyer's, had her mind changed by happening to open her prayer-book at the hymn, "Sinner, turn, why will you die?" and she turned it accordingly.

The Osceola Reveille makes a beautiful fist of the negro outrage perpetrated here on Sunday night a week ago. The individual who would deliberately manufacture and publish such a statement as that contained in the Reveille, is but a few removes better than the negroes.

An alarm of fire, on Tuesday of last week, brought out the engine, and a general racket. The fire was discovered on the roof of Henry Stutzman's residence east of stone creek. A few buckets full of water, judiciously applied, saved the building. The exercise was good for the boys.

Among the victims of the bridge disaster at Dixon, Illinois, on Sunday May 5th, were Mrs. William Cook and Miss Wilhelm, formerly of Bedford and Somerset counties respectively. They were thrown into the water beneath the network of the bridge, and were drowned before assistance could reach them.

It is related to us that a gentleman in Saltillo, presented a lady with a new set of "corset steels." Some of the neighbors are wicked enough to suppose that he is good on a hug, or it would not have been necessary to replace others. The lady must have been in a terrible fix after the stays were all gone.

A neighbor's dog annoys us very much. We were taught early that it is a "dog's delight to bark and bite," but this fellow is an exception to the rule, he only delights in running over our garden. We don't want to invest in a dog button, because it would cost a trifle, which would be considerably more than he is worth.

Twelve coal cars were wrecked on Allegheny Street, between Third and Fourth, on Friday last, owing to the spreading of the track. The track hands were putting in new ties, and failed to fasten the rails sufficiently. Another theory is that a brake block came down and forced the track apart. It was cleared up in a couple of hours. Nobody hurt.

The Altoona Sun appears to think that we ought not to remind Mr. Speer of that little $5,000 transaction, because the House and Senate were overwhelmingly Republicans. Pshaw! There was no political issue in it. It was only a question of $5,000, and the generality of Democratic Members would have sold out what is left of the party for half the money.

The Mifflintown Register & Democrat, which belongs to the whiskey interest, talks thus: "There is more drunkenness on the streets now than there was before the hotels in town closed their bars. Those who wish liquor send abroad and get it by the quantity, call their friends together, and then the whole party get as drunk as Lords. Just as we predicted. Local Option is a humbug and a farce." Bah! tell this to the marines. We know better.

In regard to the violability of the postal cards, the Postoffice Department has ruled that they are to be regarded by all postoffice officials the same as sealed letters, and any one inspecting what is written upon them will be punished the same as the former offense. After these cards are delivered the office is no longer responsible. If postmasters discover any improper use of these cards they are authorized to refuse to deliver them, under the same rules as are now prescribed for letters.

PERSONAL.

Tom Taylor tells the hardest yarns.

John Port talks of dealing in horses.

King's express horse has "git up" in him.

That car story, told by Tom Fisher, has hair on it.

"Peeps" Heckerman wears the awfulest boots.

THE TYRONE FIRE—FULL PARTICULARS.—Yesterday morning the readers of the Tribune were informed by a special telegram of the disastrous conflagration which had visited our neighboring town down the road the evening previous, and which speedily blotted out of existence one of the most extensive improvements of which Tyrone can boast—Beyer, Guyer & Co.'s Planing Mill—the red demon leaving in its train naught but huge and repulsive heaps of ashes, smouldering embers, charred lumber and damaged machinery.

As soon as it was ascertained that the fire was raging, a Tribune reporter was dispatched thither to glean full particulars of the disaster for the information of our readers, and hastily gathering the following, which may be set down as near correct as it was possible to obtain under the circumstances:

The alarm for the fire was sounded a few minutes before nine o'clock, and shortly after the flames shot heavenward through the roof of the building, and presented a most threatening aspect. The members of the Neptune Hose Company, with their apparatus, were prompt to the rescue, and bravely battled with the fiery element, but their heroic efforts seemed futile to check the rapidly spreading flames. The people of the town and surrounding country flocked to the scene of the conflagration in great numbers, and generally lent a helping hand to stay the onward march of the seething, scorching flames. Large piles of lumber which had been stacked in close proximity to the mill were speedily removed to places of security, though only a tithe of it was saved, the firemen and citizens working manfully until driven back by the intense heat.

The planing mill was a frame structure four stories high, located in West Tyrone, about one mile from the depot and built of very inflammable material, the stack running directly up through the several stories and towering above the roof but a short distance, although it is not supposed that the structure took fire from the heat thrown out by the stack. Several theories are advanced as to the origin of the fire; one being that it was caused by the engine, which is probable, and another that it was the fiendish work of some damnable incendiary, which is likewise probable. The watchman on duty for the night avers that he was in that portion of the mill in which the fire was first discovered only three minutes prior to the alarm was sounded, and that he saw no signs of fire whatever, all of which will materially strengthen the incendiary theory.

Fortunately the night was quite calm, the light gale that was blowing being in a northerly direction, and carrying the flames from, rather than toward the most contiguous properties. It was not until near eleven o'clock, and after a most terrible ordeal, that the flames were gotten under control, although the planing mill property was totally destroyed, together with a stable and some large sheds thereunto belonging, and used for storing away lumber. Four dwelling-houses were in imminent danger for a long time of being licked up by the angry flames, it being thought impossible at one time to save them—each house getting considerably scorched—yet determination to win secured the victory over the red demon. They were owned and occupied by A. W. Green, W. S. Hoar, (who was in this city at the time the fire broke out,) C. Burk and J. Kineh, the property of the latter being the worst damaged by having the roof torn off. All of the parties named sustained some loss in damage to their household effects which had been hastily and unceremoniously removed from the respective houses, whilst almost all of their fences were either burned or torn down. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's car shops were also in danger at one time when the wind was at its height.

The mill had been fitted up with the most improved machinery, and the proprietors were doing a very large and apparently prosperous business. Until recently there was also a sawmill connected with the planing mill which had been torn down preparatory to its being re-erected on a much larger scale. Ineffectual attemps had been made to drive both mills with the engine in use, consequently it was resolved to enlarge the saw mill and secure a new engine of sufficient power for the purposes named, the contract for procuring the same having been entered into but a few days since.

The destruction of the mill has thrown at least forty persons, directly or indirectly, out of employment for the time being, although our reporter was informed that in all probability arrangements would be made looking to the re erection of the structure at an early day.

As previously stated the loss is very heavy and will probably reach $30,000, on which there is an insurance of but $3,000, while by far the major portion of the loss will fall on the shoulders of Mr. Frank Beyer.

The members of the Neptune Hose Company did sentry duty throughout the entire night, apprehensive lest the flames might break out anew among the lumber piles and do further damage.—Altoona Daily Tribune, May 15.

"COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE."—The advance agent of the world renowned Alleghanians Vocalists and Swiss Bell Ringers, brings us the glorious news that this popular troupe will appear at Yenter's Hall, Saturday evening, May 24. We know of no troupe so deservedly meritorious as "these wonderful children of song," and having added a newly reconstructed programme, with New Songs, New Duetts, New Bell Pieces, and presenting New Faces, cannot fail to have an overflowing house. During their great tour around the globe, the concerts of the Alleghanians were honored by the attendance of hundreds of delighted listners—Kings, Queens, Nobles, and the most distinguished men of the age patronized their entertainments, and lavished upon them the most flattering demonstrations of approval. The Bells used by the Alleghanians were manufactured in Switzerland, expressly for them, during their late visit to Europe.

The Alleghanians present free to every lady and gentleman on entering the hall with a "Musical Programme," which is fully worth the price of admission and is a new feature of their concert.

S. S. CONVENTION.—The County Sunday School Convention promises to be doubly interesting this year. That zealous worker, Henry C. McCook, and Prof. Johnston, the "sweet singer," will be present to lend their assistance. Dr. Kerr, of York, is also expected, with his illustrated charts and his earnest practical words. A large and live Convention is anticipated.

POSTAL CARDS.—For the information of the public we append an official description of them, the prices, use, &c., issued by the Third Assistant Postmaster General:

Description.—The card adopted is five and one-eighth ($5\frac{1}{8}$) inches in length and three (3) inches in width; and is made of good stiff paper, water marked with the initials U. S. P. O. D. in monogram.

The face of the card is engraved on steel, surrounded by a border, in scroll work, one-eighth of an inch in width. The one cent stamp, printed on the upper right hand corner, is from a profile bust of the Goddess of Liberty looking to the left, and surrounded by a lathe work border, with the words "U. S. Postage" inserted above and "One Cent" below. On the upper left hand corner are the words "United States Postal Card," with directions to "write the address only on this side—the message on the other." Underneath, and occupying the lower half of the card, are ruled lines on which to write the address, the top line being prefixed with the word "To." The back of the card, intended for the communication, is entirely plain, being devoid even of ruled lines. In color, the body of the card is light cream; the printing, velvet brown.

No variation in size, shape, color, or in any other particular, will be made from the regular style to accommodate special cases; nor will the Department do any printing on the cards beyond that specified in the description.

Prices.—Postal Cards will be sold for one cent each, neither more nor less, whether in large quantities or in small.

Uses.—The object of the Postal Card is to facilitate letter correspondence and provide for the transmission through the mails, at a reduced rate of postage, of short communications, either printed or written in pencil or ink. They may therefore be used for orders, invitations, notices, receipts, acknowledgments, price lists, and other requirements of business and social life; and the matter desired to be conveyed may be either in writing or in print, or partially in both.

In their treatment as mail matter they are to be regarded by Postmasters the same as sealed letters, and not as printed matter, except that in no case will unclaimed cards be returned to the writers or sent to the Dead Letter Office. If not delivered within sixty (60) days from the time of receipt they will be burned by Postmasters.

Irregular Cards.—An ordinary printed business card may be sent through the mails when prepaired by a one cent postage stamp attached; but such card must contain absolutely no written matter except the address; otherwise it will be treated as not fully prepaid, and refused admission into the mails.

Counterfeits.—All cards different from those herein described, with postage stamps printed or embossed thereon, and purporting to be U. S. Postal Cards, are Counterfeits; and the manufacture of such cards, or the attempt to use the same, will subject the offender to a fine of five hundred dollars and imprisonment for five years. (Sec. 178, Postal Code.)

Spoiled Cards.—Postmasters will not, under any circumstances, be permitted to redeem or exchange Postal Cards that may be misdirected, spoiled in printing, or otherwise rendered unfit for use, in the hands of private holders.

Requisitions.—The Department will not furnish less than five hundred (500) Cards on the order of a Postmaster. Individuals desiring Postal Cards will purchase them of the Postmaster, as in no case can they obtain them upon direct application to the Department.

The Postal Cards are manufactured at Springfield, Mass., and are all forwarded through the mails as registered matter, and the fact that New York city and places east of Harrisburg receive them earlier than our city is of their nearer location to the manufacturing depository and the slower manner of forwarding registered matter.

MASTERING MOMENTUM—Improved Westinghouse Brake—A Trial Trip on the Pennsylvania Central.—Yesterday afternoon, between twelve and one o'clock, a train of seven passenger cars attached to a locomotive, dashed into the Pennsylvania depot at the rate of thirty-five miles per hour. Observers of the lightning speed were dumbfounded at the peculiar occurrence and concluded that for once Harrisburg would be disarded as a stopping place or that the engineer had been guilty of gross carelessness. The momentum of the train was so great that none of the startled spectators had any idea that it could be stopped within several hundred yards. What was their astonishment when the engineer put down brakes in the middle of the depot and brought the cars to a standstill in less than sixty feet! This unparallelled feat was accomplished by the aid of the improved Westinghouse air brake, which was attached to all the cars and drivers of the locomotive. In the main the brake is similar to the one now in use on the Pennsylvania railroad, but its application to the engine is a new feature and one that adds largely to its effectiveness. There are other improvements in the invention which are worthy of mention and which will go a great way in lessening the dangers of loss of life and wrecked trains. Connected with the brake attached to each car are two perpendicular iron rods reaching within a few inches of the track, and in case of a run off these attachments strike the rail or ties and in doing so effectually put on the brakes. In the event of one car accidentally cutting loose from the rest the brake is automatically applied and firmly locks the wheels. At the same time the engineer is informed of the mishap by the blowing of a whistle in his cabin caused by the detachment. Another recommendation of the invention in question is the fact that by pulling a rope running through the cars any passenger can grasp it from his seat and render the brake operative. Of course persons are only expected to resort to this measure when there is imminent danger of an accident.

The train which arrived at the depot yesterday with the improved brake started from Pittsburg on Wednesday, and to-day it will leave for Philadelphia. About twenty miles above Harrisburg the seven cars were purposely detatched from the locomotive while the train was running at a speed of over forty miles an hour. Notwithstanding this great rapidity the detached cars stopped before they had gone scarcely half the length of the train. Among thoes on the train were Mr. Westinghouse the inventor of the brake, and Col. S. A. Black, Superintendent of the Middle division.

On Monday next the improved brake will be thoroughly tested in Philadelphia in the presence of Col. Thos. A. Scott, and other railroad magnates, and if it gives satisfaction the invention will no doubt be applied to all the trains on the Pennsylvania railroad.—Patriot, 16th inst.

"BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON," being a complete and graphic account of the Credit Mobilier Investigation, the Congressional Rings, Political Intrigues, Workings of the Lobbies, Etc.: Giving the Secret History of our National Government, Showing How the Public Money is Squandered, and Votes are Obtained: with Sketches of the Leading Senators, Congressmen, Government Officials, Etc., and an Accurate Description of the Splendid Public Buildings of the Federal Capital. By Edward Winslow Martin.

The National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, has just issued one of the most remarkable and interesting books of the day, bearing the above title.

Of late the whole land has been ringing with the most startling and appalling reports of corruption at Washington—the highest officials—men whose names have hitherto been without a stain, have been implicated in the charges, and the press has rung with accusations and denunciations which have caused all good citizens, without regard to party, to fear for the future of the country. All have an interest in discovering the truth of these reports, and all have an earnest desire to know more of the practical workings of affairs at Washington.

The author carries us "Behind the Scenes," and shows us those features of Washington life which we all desire to know more about, but which have been kept secret by interested parties. He tells a fearful tale of corruption and immorality in high places, and gives a truthful but appalling history of the Credit Mobilier Swindle and Investigation, and Congressional Bribery, and presents to us with grim fidelity to truth, the shameful but interesting secret history of the Lobby, with sketches of the noted Women of the Lobby. It is a sad and terrible story that he tells but one the people ought to know, and we commend the book to our readers, as one that will richly repay persual. The author tells us about the hard worked and poorly-paid employes of the departments, and gives interesting facts about the famale clerks, of whom so much has been said. He explains the intaisate and attractive process of making the money and bonds of the Government; we explore with him the magnificent Capitol, and admire the glorious works of art, the splended halls and gorgeous chambers which it contains; we examine the treasures of the great Congressional Library; we are introduced into the White House, and enabled to see life "Behind the Scenes" there. In short, we are presented to all that is interesting, grand, thrilling, admirable and curious in the Capital of the Nation.

A truthful picture of life "Behind the Scenes in Washington" cannot be otherwise than deeply-interesting. The low price at which the book is issued, brings it within the reach of all, and no one who wants to know the truth about men and things at Washington, should fail to read this work.

It is sold by subscription only, and agents are wanted in every county.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Notes of Travel.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I ask a small space in the columns of your paper, to give your readers a few brief "notes of travel," with staff and satchel through a portion of the "Lower End" of this county.

Bidding adieu to the genial proprietor of the Broad Top City hotel, I wended my way eastward down the slope of E. B. Top mountain, which is now attracting so much attention from the fact of the immense quantities of coal underlying the surface of thousands of acres, and will be opened up as soon as the new railroad is completed. The topography of the country is rough, wild, and romantic, bringing to mind thoughts of Red skins, who once roamed these mountain sides. As we reached the summit of Ray's Hill, and thence to top of Sidling Hill, the scenery is varied, but picturesque and sublime, especially the latter, looking down upon the little valley of Hare's, stretching to the north and on the right of the group of farms known as Three Springs, while through them course small creeks, shedding forth reflected rays of sunlight all combining to make a sight rarely to be seen.

Through this mountain the E. B. T. R. R. Co. are putting their tunnel. They have shanties for boarding at either end, but as yet have rather a small force of men for such a huge undertaking.

Nothing of interest to note save gangs of laborers at work on the road until reaching Saltillo, a small village nestled in among the hills, situated on the line of railroad, containing a large steam tannery of Leas, M'Vitty & Sons, who by the way are very clever fellows, one church and two stores. I bespeak for this town better days to come, as there are facilities here for the manufacture of iron unsurpassed anywhere in the State, not excepting the Lehigh valley, only on a smaller scale. Iron ore, hematite and fossil, both combined, which is very necessary for the production of good iron, may be seen cropping out from almost ever hillside, and soft water in abundance to feed steam boilers which would always be free from incrustations. I am informed there is also a very fine mineral spring (sulphur) her which some day will be resorted to by invalids in search of health.

Plodding on 1½ miles below we emerge into Three Springs or Scottsville of yore. This is a town of some two hundred inhabitants, and which bids fair to be a place of some importance; it is the centre of a large scope of country, abounding in minerals, and which the railroad will be the means of opening up. Three Springs and surroundings have always lain in a dormant condition, simply because she has had no outlet by rail, being 14 miles from the Pennsylvania railroad. Her palmy days are about being ushered in; there are untold fortunes in this valley, and unbounded resources which alone need to be developed. It will be a very short time until there will be a furnace or two erected and the puff of the exhaust of steam engines and hum and bustle of industry will be heard on every hand.

The Normal School conducted by the County Superintendent, and our warm hearted friend, Prof. Norris, my informant says, is prospering finely.

The Hudson house is Head Quarters of the E. B. T. R. R. Co., on this part of the line—where I had the good pleasure of meeting some of the corps. This hotel is a large commodious stone structure under the careful supervision of Mr. Geo. D. Hudson who was "Mine Host" for the night, and whose wife takes great delight in making their guests comfortable. With a hearty "good morning" and shake of the landlord's hand, (yes and one still in my memory,) I traveled on with staff in hand chagrined with the condition of the roads. I can say nothing good, I do assure you, for road officials in this part of the county. People say they are burdened with taxes and why in the name of common sense don't tax-payers put in Supervisors that not only know how to make roads, but go at it and make them. Orbisonia is reached after a hard tramp and here I close. Yours, &c.,

Whitewash and Plastering.

"The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year," wrote Bryant, of the stormy months; but it is so especially applicable to the spring time, when all mankind are outlawed from their homes, that we cannot refrain from quoting the lines. The rooms are stripped of carpets, and the whitewasher takes possession.

Ordinarily, whitewash is a trial. Hard-finished walls are far preferable in most situations, but, inasmuch as they are expensive, and are not put in all rooms, the only recourse to clean and purify the living rooms and offices of dwellings, is lime-water.

When properly prepared and applied, it neither scales or rubs off, but the trouble is, that in most cases, it is not properly put on. We have tried all sorts of patent mixtures and concoctions of lime-water, or whitewash, but, all things considered, have found nothing better than lime-water and glue. The quantity of glue to a pailful of wash, being about three ounces. Slack the lime with water, stir it all up together, do not make it too thick, and add the glue lastly, having previously dissolved it in water. Apply this with a whitewash brush, but do not put too much on at a time. Many people have an impression that, inasmuch as charity covereth a multitude of sins, much whitewash covereth a multitude of streaks, but this is an erroneous view of the matter; too much lime makes streaky places, and is apt to scale off. Very dirty, smoky walls, often require to be washed with strong acid, or alum water, before the wash will lie on at all. If the walls are so treated, they will hold the lime much better than without it. As previously remarked, but little wash must be put on at a time, and but a small surface covered at each stroke. A wash prepared and applied as above, will last a year in ordinary situations.

The walls of houses being particularly exposed, are always requiring more or less repair. Either the doors have slammed against them and broken out holes, or other mischances have befallen them, to their manifest detriment. It is well to know how to repair them, as it is not always possible or necessary to call in a mason to do it. More than this, the price these men must charge for their time, makes the repairs very costly, although the work done appears of no amount. People do not reflect that, although a mechanic may not be even an hour or two at his work, he may have come a long distance, and brought many tools with him, so that he has really lost half a day, and must charge accordingly.

To plaster, or repair a hole in the wall, first clean the spot all around it of all loose pieces, so that the rest will be firm and solid. Then prepare coal ashes (not wood), by sifting them through a fine sieve, as fine as meal, or flour; no pieces of cinders must be left in the ashes. Obtain some plaster paris (sold in all stores), and when ready to apply the cement, mix about half plaster and ashes together, with water enough to form a moderately stiff paste. Wet the wall, and lather all over where the damage is, the immediate spot only, and then apply the cement with a broad bladed knife, or, what is better, a trowel; the latter costs only a dollar or so, and is always a convenient instrument in a household. This mixture, above described, sets hard, and dries, without cracking, in a short time, and a knowledge of it will save many dollars in repairs, to say nothing of the unsightliness of a room with the plaster knocked off. It is more suggestive of squalor and misery, than any other mark of time's tooth.

Vitality of Wood Seed.

I venture the assertion that the efforts usually put forth to destroy the chickweed always result in increasing the pests, for the stellaria family, of which there are seven or eight varieties, possess the power of ripening their seeds, if need be, before they are half matured in size; so that when the plants are chopped up by the hoe and left to die on the surface of the soil, millions of these seeds will ripen sufficiently to retain the germinating power, and that, too, when the seeds are so small as to be scarcely visible. The S. Media, as botanists name the chickweed that infests our gardens, produces seeds as hard as shot. The same, too, may be said of the purslane and many other weeds. Now, if these weeds be merely taken up and carried to the dung heap, the seed will not rot, if in an ordinary compost, but will be brought back to the garden, where they will grow again. To fight weeds effectually, they should be chopped or pulled out as soon as they appear above the ground, and should be at once removed, not to the dung hill but to some separate limbo in a corner, expressly set apart, and there undisturbed let them severely alone year after year to rot, seeds and all, as the surface of the ground.—Utica Herald.

Salt and Ashes for Cows.

A wise and experienced stock-raiser says, "On turning my cows to pasture, in the spring, I provided several small tubs, and having fixed them firmly in the soil to prevent them being overturned, put in each tub one quart of salt and three quarts of sifted wood ashes, previously well mixed by stirring. The cows partake freely of this mixture. It prevents injury from the sudden change from dry to green food, and has, besides, a most invigorating effect upon the general system. Some assert that salt should be given only as often as once a week, as its more frequent use would be injurious. But when supplied in this way, no apprehensions need be entertained."

To Destroy Ants, place a fresh meat bone where the ants can get at it, and they will flock to it in large numbers. When they are on it dip it in hot water; repeat it a few times and the ants will have disappeared.

The farmers are now busily engaged planting corn.

The ARION PIANO-FORTE has greater power than any other Piano-Forte manufactured.

It will Stand in Tune Longer, and in its mechanical construction it is more perfect, and, therefore, more durable, than any instrument constructed in the usual modern style.

The arrangement of the Agraffe, the manner of stringing, the peculiar form and arrangement of the Iron Frame

SUPERCEDES ALL OTHERS

The use of a bar (which is a part of the Iron Frame on a line with the heavy steel stringing,) gives where most needed, and in this respect all other pianoes fail.

The construction of the WREST PLANK, into which the tuning Pins are inserted, is such that it is impossible for the pins to come loosened, or the Wrest Plank itself to split, as is too often the case in other Piano-Fortes.

The Extraordinary Evenness

throughout the scale, the excellent Singing Quality, the

LENGTH AND PURITY OF VIBRATION,

all go to prove what we claim, viz: that the

ARION PIANO-FORTE

Is the Best Instrument Manufactured.

ALSO

ESTEYS COTTAGE ORGANS,

WITH THE

VOX JUBILANT

AND

THE NE PLUS ULTRA OF

universally acknowledged to be the BEST Organ made for Sunday Schools, Churches, Parlors and Lodges.

Having more power, with a sweeter tone, than any other Organ in the market notwithstanding the representations of agents interested in the sale of other Organs, we do fully warrant every Organ for the period of five years, (at our own expense.) We have no agent in Huntingdon at present, therefore all who may want one of the best Organs extant may receive, by corresponding with us, a price and descriptive list from which a selection may be made, to which we will give our personal attention, and guarantee satisfaction,
